

WINEENTHUSIAST

12 Rosé Wines from California, Oregon and More (2022)

BY WINE ENTHUSIAST

The weather is warming across the country and the smell of flower blossom is filling the air, which marks the release of our favorite summertime pour: rosé. Sure, our enjoyment of pink wine isn't solely bound to the sun-soaked months of the year, but it just seems the perfect pairing with the beach, pool and picnic vibes that come with the season.

As stocks of the 2020 vintage have waned on store shelves, a pink wave of the newly released 2021s are available. The first to hit the market are typically those from the West Coast, since logistically they simply have less mileage to travel than their international counterparts from France, Italy and beyond.

You'll find newly released rosés from up and down the coast, including those from the Columbia and Willamette Valleys in Washington and Oregon, to Sonoma and the Central Coast in California. Recently bottled and hitting store shelves as we speak, these West Coast rosés are ready to be chilled, popped and enjoyed.

Here are 12 bottles to appease your rosé thirsty palates.

PHOTO COURTESY OF GOOSE RIDGE

Revelation by Goose Ridge 2021 Rosé (Goose Gap); $18 Find on Goose Ridge.

This is mostly Syrah along with other Rhône varieties. Pale in color, the aromas capture your attention... SEE SCORE AND FULL REVIEW